

Abstract

Methods are disclosed for diagnosing rejection in a transplanted subject, monitoring rejection in a transplanted subject at risk thereof, preventing, inhibiting, reducing or treating rejection in a transplanted subject, or identifying agents for use in the prevention, inhibition, reduction or treatment of rejection, based on genes which are differentially expressed in transplanted subjects.